Demonstrators Picket at Coe College

Demonstration at Coe in Support of Negro Demands

By Bill Duffy

Negro students at Coe college began three days of demonstrating Monday noon in support of seven demands which they made of the college administration.

A spokesman said the demands "have nothing to do with separatism or racism," but are aimed at "making Coe college a better place for black students to come."

Shelby Steele of Chicago, one of 13 Negro students who appeared before reporters in Gage Memorial student union Monday morning, listed the following demands being made by an organization called the "Afro-American Self-Educational Organization" at Coe:

"We, the members of the Afro-American Self-Educational Organization, submit the following demands to be met by the Coe college administration:

"1. A public statement of policy from the administration deploring white racism in America.

"2. Incorporate black history, culture, art, literature, and language courses taught by black professors. Should a black professor not be available, the courses may be taught by a qualified student.

"3. Black cheerleaders. (No cheerleaders, no athletes.)

"4. A black activities house where black students may provide a social life for themselves.

"5. The student senate budget to the Afro-American Self-Educational Organization to consist of at least two-thirds (2/3) of the year's activities fee paid by the members of the organization.

"6. A black ombudsman be hired to act as a counselor and advisor to the black students of Coe college.

a. To help deal with the tensions which result from the dualism of being a black student in a white school.

b. This person is not to be a faculty member in order to enable him to devote his full time and efforts to the problems of the black students.

"7. A required training program for all faculty members.

a. To establish an awareness of the relationship between the black man's history in this country and the students on this campus for the purpose of improving the relations between faculty member and student."

Meetings

The Negro students claimed they had spent six hours in meetings with Coe President Dr. Joseph McCabe and Dr. Leo L. Nussbaum, dean of the college, since the seven demands were given to McCabe last Thursday afternoon.

One meeting was held Saturday afternoon and another Sunday evening, the students said. The Sunday meeting was attended by representatives from the faculty and board of trustees.

"They gave us no answer at all," Steele said. "They said they'd consider it."

Steele said the Negro students had organized more than three months ago on the campus. Since then the group has sponsored an observance of Negro History week and held social activities for black students.

The group told reporters that "peaceful demonstrating" was planned for the area near the Coe administration building through Wednesday.

"We have no plans beyond Wednesday," said Steele.

"Negative Comments"

Steele said that the Negro demands, which were posted on bulletin boards Friday, had not been well received by white students. He said "negative comments and derogatory statements" were found scribbled on the notices.

Asked about the demand for Negro cheerleaders, Steele said, "Many black girls have tried out and been rejected in recent years. The selection has been prejudicial."

He said general practice is to select cheerleaders with judges who are members of varsity teams. He said the selections usually appear to be based on fraternity-sorority politics.

Steele said that during the weekend meetings, his organization had suggested that Barber House, a college-owned house on A avenue near the campus, be converted to a black activities house.

He said the house has been vacant this year. It was one of two which Coe used earlier to house students during construction of dormitories.

Steele said the demand for funds from student activity fees would help the Afro-American organization support its program of activities.

The student activity fee is $30 per person, he said.

The Negro students said they had nominated three persons for the job of ombudsman, or spokesman to serve as go-between for the college and the Negro students.

The students said there were about 60 Negroes enrolled at Coe. A list of 40 names was attached to the printed demands made of the administration.

Six men students were identified as spokesmen for the organization. Steele and four others are from Chicago and the sixth is from St. Louis.

The other five spokesmen were Anthony Courtney, Ralph Montgomery, John Valentine and Hoyland H. Ricks, all of Chicago; and Richard Gaines of St. Louis.

Coe President McCabe said Monday afternoon that the students did not inform him that demonstrations were to be held in support of the seven demands.

Oelwein Assist By Linn County

Linn county assisted in cleaning up Oelwein Monday after last week's tornado by sending an end loader and a man to operate it.

County Engineer Bill Harrington said the county was also supplying some hand shovels and that one of the road crew men had sent his personal chain saw for use in the area.

Statement by Coe President Joseph McCabe

The following is a statement given to The Gazette by Coe college President Dr. Joseph McCabe relative to the demands by the Afro-American Self-Educational Organization:

"The document entitled Afro-American Student Demands for Equality prepared by the Afro-American Self-Educational Organization of the college was presented to President McCabe in his office by members of the organization on Thursday afternoon, May 16.

"Saturday afternoon Dr. McCabe met with spokesmen for the group and a conference was arranged for Sunday evening in Gage Memorial Union.

"The meeting was attended by students who are members of the Afro-American Organization, members of the administrative staff, the executive committee of the faculty, the chairman of the board of trustees and the chairman of the instruction committee of the board of trustees.

Three Statements

"President McCabe opened the meeting with three statements. The first position he enunciated was that he would not discuss any item in the document or arrange for any meeting with students under duress. He pointed out as did others present that the word 'demands' is commonly understood to imply threat or coercion and that he would therefore address himself to the various points as simply 'items contained in the document.' He said this meant if there were any coercion involved or any threat intended that there was no possibility for the meeting to continue. Spokesmen for the student organization then gave the assurance that there was no coercion involved and that no threat was intended. Their statements on this point were deemed acceptable by the president.

"President McCabe then proceeded to introduce his second point by stating that any behavior which interfered with the regular operation of the college would be followed immediately by legal action. He then read the following excerpt from a statement issued by the American Assn. of University Professors in April of this year as follows:

"In view of some recent events, the fifty-fourth annual meeting deems it important to state its conviction that action by individuals or groups to prevent speakers invited to the campus from speaking, to disrupt the educational operations of the institutions in the course of demonstrations, or to obstruct and restrain other members of the academic community and campus visitors by physical force is destructive of the pursuit of learning and of a free society. All components of the academic community are under a strong obligation to protect its processes from these tactics."

Points Reiterated

"President McCabe then said that if all present were clearly in agreement on the first point and if all understood clearly the second point, then the way was clear for a discussion of every item in the document and that he himself would probably wish to add to the items for consideration. The President pointed out that this was not a decision-making conference, but that there were items in the document to which four segments of the college must give consideration: Namely, student council, faculty, administrative staff, and board of trustees. The conference then proceeded to explore each item in the document. At the close of the meeting the president reiterated the three points of his original presentation. He stated that the initiative for the consideration of each item in the document now lies with him to convene the proper groups to consider the respective items.

"Monday morning Dr. McCabe met with members of the organization. He stated that it was his intention to have each item in the document considered by the appropriate body before the end of the current academic year."

Asks End of Rule

Former Premier Pierre Mendes-France, a leader of the non-communist opposition, called for an end to De Gaulle's 10-year rule. He did not mention the president by name, but referred throughout his statement to "the power" and "the state."

This power, he charged, has for 10 years refused "a discussion with the representatives of the workers, students or peasants as well as the elected representatives of the people."

Lee Bailey Blasted by High Judge

TRENTON (AP) — Chief Justice Joseph Weintraub of the New Jersey supreme court Monday accused Lawyer F. Lee Bailey of "indolence and arrogance unequalled to anything I can recall."

"I disagree sharply . . ." Bailey retorted.

Weintraub and other justices on the court took issue with statements by Bailey concerning judicial procedure in a knotty New Jersey murder case.

Bailey appealed to the state's highest court for reinstatement as a defense lawyer.

Decision Reserved

The supreme court reserved decision after a long hearing Monday.

Bailey was ordered removed from the case by Trial Judge Gordon Brown, who charged him with unethical conduct in circulating a letter to state officials and lawmakers criticizing the prosecutor's handling of the case.

Brown acted in response to a memorandum from the state supreme court which called for Bailey's removal unless he could persuade the trial judge otherwise.

Weintraub took issue with statements by Bailey to the trial judge after he had been ordered removed.

Was Upset

"Aren't you a little bit disgusted with yourself?" the court quoted him as telling Brown.

Bailey replied that he was upset when he made the remark. "On sober reflection I would not have made it," the lawyer said.

Bailey, from Boston, is not a member of the New Jersey bar and thus can appear in a New Jersey court only with the permission of the trial judge.
